A N
A C C O U N T
OF THE
Institution, Progress, and Present State
OF THE
SCOTTISH CORPORATION in LONDON.

I*F to feed the hungry, cloath the naked, and visit the sick and the prisoner, are offices of charity, so agreeable to humanity, and so forcibly recommended by the Christian religion, that even the profligate, under any of those circumstances, (altho' the fruit of their own folly and intemperance) are entitled to relief; surely the sober and industrious, when labouring under unavoidable and undeserved misfortunes or infirmities, have double claim to our pity and support.*

Such are the seamen, artificers, mechanics, and labourers of the Scottish nation; who, as soon as they are qualified for any occupation, daily resort hither in great numbers to seek for employment;

ployment; by which, however, few of them rise into competence so as to become masters or housekeepers, or even capable of making any provision for a fit of sickness or other casualty, much less for old age or other irremediable infirmities. Thus necessarily continuing journeymen and inmates for life, although by their labour and industry, and early and prolific marriages, they contribute to the general stock, they are, for want of legal settlements here, considered as aliens, and excluded from the benefit of any parochial relief; whilst, on the other hand, by outliving most, if not all, their relations and acquaintance, in a long course of absence, they become in a manner strangers to their native country; and so, besides the difficulty of supporting the expence of a return, have but little encouragement to attempt it.

Moved by these considerations, several eminent and charitable Scottish Gentlemen, Merchants, and Traders joined in a petition to King Charles the Second, for a Charter of Incorporation; which was granted them, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of England, dated the 30th of June 1665, whereby they were authorised to erect an Hospital in the city or liberty of Westminster, for the maintenance of old or decayed artificers of the Scottish nation, and for training up their children to manual occupations. And such was the zeal of those times, and so great the liberality of the new Corporation, as well as of several other worthy persons, both English and Scots, towards promoting this humane Institution, that in the year 1673 they were enabled to erect a Hall, with six adjoining tenements, in Black Friars, then one of the suburbs of the city of London.

But this situation, though selected for reasons of utility and convenience, not being warranted by the said Charter, and the number of eight Governors thereby limited being judged too small for so extensive an undertaking, the said Governors applied for, and obtained, from the said King, a second Charter of Incorporation, dated the sixteenth of November 1676, with an addition of thirty-three Assistants, and liberty to fix their
Hospital

Hospital either in London or Westminster; and to purchase and hold lands to the yearly value of five hundred pounds, by the name and style of, The Master, Governors, and Assistants of the Scottish Hospital of the Foundation of King Charles the Second.

From the tenor of these Charters it appears to have been the original intention of the promoters of them, to lodge their Poor all together, in the manner of Work-houses or Alms-houses; but experience having soon convinced them of the impropriety of separating married persons from their families, and of the many difficulties attending the reception of a number of men, women, and children, they wisely adopted the plan of relieving the objects of their charity at their own habitations, whereby all the beneficial purposes of an hospital might be attained with less difficulty and expence, as well as with more comfort and convenience to the Poor themselves.

And at the same time, by obliging such as were desirous to entitle themselves to relief at any future time, to become subscribing members, and contribute to the charitable fund, by a small quarterage of four shillings (now sixteen shillings) per annum, they not only laid them under the necessity of being sober and industrious whilst fit for labour, but enabling the Corporation to extend its charity to a larger number and variety of objects; and (by the blessing of God upon their endeavours) to restore many of them to their families and the Public.

The funds of this Charity however being very small, and with the addition of casual benefactions and the trifling quarterage paid by the honorary as well as subscribing Members, by no means adequate to its wants, more especially under the present exorbitant prices of all the necessaries of life, it has been thought advisable to extend the plan of it, in imitation of other hospitals in and near the Metropolis, by making the number of its governors indefinite, and increasing their payments as well as the contributions of the subscribing Members.

The

The Master, Governors, and Assistants accordingly applied for and obtained from his present Majesty a fresh Charter of Incorporation, dated the 28th day of November 1775, by the name and style of The Scottish Hospital of the Foundation of King Charles the Second: the government whereof is thereby directed to be by a President, Six Vice-presidents, a Treasurer, and such a number of Governors as by any future by-law shall be prescribed, the said Governors being enjoined to assemble yearly on St. Andrew's day, or the day after, and upon the First Wednesday in January, and the Wednesday next after Lady-day, Midsummer-day, and Christmas-day; such Meetings to be called General Courts, and to have the sole power of making or repealing by-laws, subject to the confirmation of the next General Court, and also to appoint Committees; and the said President, Vice-presidents, and Treasurer, (being natives of Scotland or of Scottish extraction) to be annually elected on St. Andrew's day, or the day following, except in cases of vacancy by death or otherwise.

In the Year 1782, the Hall and adjoining Tenements, erected in Black Friars as above mentioned, having become extremely ruinous, and even dangerous to occupy, were from motives of prudence, sold to the City of London; and the money arising from the sale thereof was immediately vested in the purchase of certain Freehold Premises, at the North End of Crane-Court, Fleet-Street, well known by the name of the Apartments of the Royal Society; where there are ample Rooms, a Hall, and other Apartments, fit in every respect for all the purposes of this Institution.

From this state of facts it appears, that the government of this Charity is vested in such Noblemen and Gentlemen of the Scottish nation, or of Scottish extraction, as, moved by the distresses of their countrymen, are disposed to contribute towards their relief; and that the Charity itself may not improperly be considered as an Hospital of Out-patients and Out-pensioners, consisting

I. Of such poor as either through age, or incurable disorders not of their own procuring, are quite disabled from earning any part of their subsistence, and who therefore receive a weekly pension.

II. Of such, as by sickness or otherwise, without their own defaults, are for a time rendered incapable of assisting themselves or families, and are therefore aided by a weekly allowance until restored to health and ability.

III. Of such, as being still able and willing to earn a part of their livelihood are, by growing into years, or by large families or accidental losses, frequently compelled to petition for occasional relief.

IV. And lastly, of such as are invited by their relations or friends in Scotland to return home, but are unable to defray the expence of so long a journey.

To conclude therefore ; as the objects of this Charity do in every light merit the compassion and support of all well-disposed and public spirited persons in general, as well English as Scots, so in particular do they challenge the more immediate regard of the opulent inhabitants of the cities of London and Westminster, in whose service, or for whose benefit they have spent their youth or strength.

And, it is humbly hoped, that those of their own country, persons of Quality and Distinction, or to whom Providence has been bountiful, will copy the benevolence of their illustrious ancestors, and set a laudable example to others.

By order of the Court, January 1st, 1783.

JAMES DOBIE, Secretary.

B Y - L A W S,

Agreed on and established, according to the Directions of the Charter, for the good Order and Government of the Scottish Hospital and Corporation of the Foundation of King Charles the Second, Anno 1665, and 1776.

Re-incorporated by King GEORGE the Third, Anno 1775.

I. Concerning Governors.

THAT every Governor shall pay towards the charitable purposes of this Corporation, either the sum of Ten Guineas upon his admission, as the qualification of a Governor for life, or an annual sum of One Guinea, the first payment to be made at the time of such admission, and yearly thereafter on St. Andrew's day; but every Annual Governor who shall be two years of his subscription in arrear, and shall not, upon demand of the Treasurer or Secretary, discharge the same, shall not longer be a Governor, or have a right to vote at any Court or Committee.

II. Concerning General and other Courts.

That besides the Five General Courts required by the last Charter, it shall be in the power of the President, any of the Vice-presidents, the Treasurer, or Two of the Governors, to order Especial Courts at such times as they shall judge necessary or expedient, giving due notice to the Secretary, that they may be summoned accordingly.

That

That at all General or Especial Courts, the President, or the Senior Vice-president, or in the absence of all the Vice-presidents, the Treasurer, or in his absence, any one of the Governors present, elected by plurality of voices at such meeting, shall take the chair and preside.

That at all such Courts the presiding Officer shall regulate the debates, put questions, and declare the majority; but upon demand of any Two or more Governors, the question proposed shall be decided by a ballot.

The General Court alone shall have power to fix or alter the salaries or wages of the Officers and Servants of the Corporation.

III. Of Committees.

The Annual Committee appointed on St. Andrew's day, or the day next following, shall consist of the President, the six Vice-presidents, the Treasurer, and the twenty senior Governors of the Corporation, who shall be a standing Committee for dispatching the business thereof. That any other Governor who shall attend have a voice in their deliberations, five of them shall be a quorum, and shall have the superintendence of all the inferior Officers and Servants of the Corporation, with power to suspend any of them until the next General or Especial Court, to whom they shall from time to time make reports of their opinion and proceedings.

The said Committee shall assemble at the times appointed by any of the General Courts, with liberty to adjourn themselves from time to time, and shall be summoned to all such meetings, and supplied with coffee, tea, and two of the Daily Papers at the expence of the Corporation; and the said President, Vice-presidents, and Treasurer, shall be liable to a fine or penalty of Two Shillings and Six-pence each, and the said twenty Senior Governors to a fine of One Shilling and Six-pence each, for non-attendance at every meeting of the said Committee to which which they shall have been duly summoned, the said fines or penalties to be applied towards defraying the expence of the Anniversary Meeting on St. Andrew's day, agreeable to the custom of the Corporation under the former Charters.

IV. Concerning the Anniversary Feast.

The Anniversary Feast of the Corporation shall be held on St. Andrew's day, or the day next following, and the expence thereof, over and above what is received for fines, (as in the preceding Article) defrayed by the President, the Vice-presidents, Treasurer, and Governors of the Corporation; and that four of the Governors, according to seniority and in rotation, serve the office of Stewards at the dinner on St. Andrew's day, and give all necessary orders and directions as to conducting the same.

V. Concerning the Treasurer.

He shall give such security as by a General or Especial Court or Committee shall be thought adequate to the trust reposed in him. He shall receive all the rents and profits of the Corporation estates, and the dividends and interests of the public stocks and other benefits; and also all subscriptions, benefactions, legacies, and donations to the Charity; likewise all forfeitures and penalties which by virtue of any order or by-laws shall be incurred by any members; and he shall issue out and pay all such sums as shall be ordered by any Court or Committee. He shall keep fair and regular accounts of all his receipts, payments, and disbursements in books to be provided for that purpose at the expence of the Corporation, and in such method and form as the Annual Committee shall direct. His accounts shall yearly be audited and passed in the months of December or January by the Annual Committee, who shall be especially summoned for that purpose; and the said account, as also a general state of the Corporation funds and circumstances, shall be reported to the next General Court, for their review and confirmation.

VI. Concerning the Secretary.

He shall attend at all General and Especial Courts and Committees, and, being a Governor, shall be a Member thereof, and have a vote therein.

He shall take minutes of the proceedings of all such Courts and Committees, and make a fair entry thereof, with copious indexes, in books to be provided for that purpose at the expence of the Corporation, and shall sign the same when read to, and confirmed at a subsequent Court or Committee.

He shall receive all Letters directed to the Corporation, or any Court or Committee thereof, and lay the same before them respectively; and also prepare such letters as they shall direct him to write.

He shall have the custody of the Common Seal, which shall be kept in a box with two locks, the Treasurer to have in his care the key of one of them, and the Secretary that of the other.

He shall keep an Annual Historical Register of the transactions of the Corporation, beginning every year at St. Andrew's day, and ending that day twelve months.

This Register shall contain the names of all persons who receive Charity, digested under proper heads; the annual number of the present Governors, with the account of their donations or yearly subscriptions, in separate columns; the money in hand on St. Andrew's day; and what has been paid or expended during the current year in officers, servants, apartments, rates, and tradesmens bills of all sorts.

He shall, as much as possible, endeavour to make himself acquainted with the nature and circumstances of the several objects who apply for Charity.

He shall keep and preserve all books, papers and deeds, in an office, or committee-room, at the Hall; and shall take charge of all the furniture, goods, pictures, fixtures, moveables, and other effects and property belonging to the Corporation, in

in the hall, rooms, and other apartments ; a Schedule or Inventory whereof shall be lodged in the hands of the Treasurer.

He shall keep a Cash-account of the Corporation, and draw out exact lists of the Members, with the sums contributed by each, and the arrears due on the day preceding each St. Andrew's day.

He shall have Apartments in the hall or house of the Corporation for himself and family to live in, in consideration of his attention and diligence in all these services, and that he may be ready to receive all applications, messages, letters, or other matters ; to answer all enquiries properly made ; to receive donations and subscriptions if tendered to him, and to pay the same (when the sum thereof amounts to Ten Guineas) to the Treasurer.

All Rates, Assessments or Taxes, properly laid or charged on the Secretary, during his residence in the said Apartments, shall not be at the expence of the Corporation.

VII. Concerning Subscribing Members.

No person shall be admissible as a Subscribing Member, who is upwards of thirty years of age. He must be a native of Scotland or Scottish extraction, and of good repute, and follow some trade or occupation within the Cities or Liberties of London and Westminster, or the Bills of Mortality ; and be recommended by two of the Governors in writing, with an account of his profession and place of abode, and be approved of by a Court or Committee ; who, nevertheless and notwithstanding the aforesaid general rule, shall have power, and, circumstances concurring in their judgment to make it eligible, may admit members not exceeding forty years of age, on paying an additional deposit, proportionable to their age in the opinion of the Court or Committee.

Every person so approved of and admitted a Subscribing Member, shall, at the time of his admission, pay Half a Guinea to the General Fund, and One Shilling to the Beadle ; and shall also pay to the said Fund, the yearly sum of Sixteen Shillings, by quarterly payments, the first payment to commence from the quarter-day next after his admission.—N. B. Attendance will be given at the Hall of the Corporation in Crane-court, Fleet-street, on the first Wednesday after every quarter-day, from Six to Eight in the evening, when it is expected that every Subscribing Member will call to pay his quarterage, or send some person with it.

But if he shall suffer the said payments to be a whole year in arrear, and shall not within One Month after demand thereof pay and discharge the same, then, and in such case, he shall forfeit and pay to the General Fund Five Shillings, over and above the said arrear ; and in case of refusal or neglect to pay the same within the time above limited, he shall be struck out of the list of Subscribing Members, and never be restored thereto, or become intitled to any relief from the Corporation, unless some General or Especial Court shall, upon consideration of the particular circumstances of the case, think proper to re-admit him as a Subscribing Member.

Every Subscribing Member (having been so for One Year, and who has regularly made his payments), who by sickness or infirmity shall be rendered incapable of supporting himself and family, having no property or means of subsistence, and is not in any circumstances himself to bear the expence of advice and medicines, shall, during the time of such incapacity, receive Ten Shillings weekly, or such support as their particular case requires, in the opinion of the Committee ; and if his situation requires a nurse, the Committee shall have power to give such further allowance as may appear proper, not exceeding in the whole Fifteen Shillings weekly.

And if any Subscribing Member having been so for Ten Years, and regularly made his payments, shall be desirous of returning to Scotland for the remainder of his life, upon a proper encouragement from his relations and friends, and shall upon his petition to some Court or Committee obtain leave so to do, then and in such case he shall be paid Two Guineas out of the general Fund towards the Expences of his journey, and Six Guineas more upon his arrival at the place of his destination ; but he shall from henceforth for ever be excluded from any farther relief or benefit of or from the Corporation.

No person shall receive any benefit from the Funds of the Corporation that hath any distemper wherewith he hath been afflicted from his infancy, or contracted by a loose and wicked life.

If any Member having been so, and regularly made his payments for Five Years, shall by Divine Providence, through age or accidents, become blind or lame, so that he is rendered incapable of following his employment, he shall receive Five Shillings weekly during life.

And in case any Subscribing Member residing in England (who shall have continued upon the list, and paid his subscription for Five Years next preceding) shall depart this life, leaving a widow or children ; then, in such case, the Corporation will pay Eight Guineas to his said widow, or dispose of the same for the benefit of his said children, if under the age of eighteen years, and not otherwise ; and the Corporation will, over and above, allow Two Guineas for funeral charges.

That Eight of the Subscribing Members be annually appointed to visit the Sick in their several districts once a-week, and make a report to any Quarterly or other Court or Committee, of their situation in point of health and circumstances.

VIII. Concerning the Receiver and Beadle.

He shall constantly reside in an Apartment at the Hall, when not employed abroad upon the business of the Corporation.

He shall receive all Letters and Messages, and deliver the same to the Secretary.

He shall serve all Summonses issued out to the President, Vice-presidents, Treasurer and Governors, or Subscribing Members, and execute all Orders of any Court or Committee, or

or of the President, or of any of the Vice-presidents, or of the Treasurer or Secretary.

He shall give such Security as the Corporation shall require, for the Trust reposed in him.

He shall collect the Annual Subscriptions of Governors, and the Payments of Subscribing Members as the same becomes due, paying all he collects over and above the sum of Five Guineas, into the Treasurer's hands, and giving an account thereof in writing to the Secretary.

He shall attend all Meetings and Committees in a Gown and Staff of Office; and at every Meeting he shall lay his Book of Monies received, paid to the Treasurer, or in his hands, before the Governors then present.

He shall, when required so to do, be aiding and assisting in visiting such of the Subscribing Members as are confined by Sickness or Infirmary, or other just cause, and pay them their respective allowances, which he shall receive from and be accountable for to the Treasurer.

He shall attend and wait upon all Courts and Committees, and from time to time report to them a true State of the Health and Condition of such Subscribing Members as he shall have been directed to visit.

For all which Services he shall be allowed at the end of each year, by way of payment, One Shilling in the Pound on all Monies so received; but not on any Legacies, or particular Donations; and shall have and enjoy a small apartment, free of Rent and Taxes, except such Rates as may be assessed on him personally.

And if he shall in any instance disobey Orders or neglect his Duty, it shall be in the power of the Treasurer or Secretary to suspend him till the next Meeting of the Committee: but if he shall at any time be discovered to have withheld part of the allowances due to any of the confined Members, or to have made a false report of their state and situation, he shall be for ever dismissed from the service of the Corporation.

January 1st, 1783.
